The internet remains the best and most cost effective way of marketing to the public. Any type of media can be used for marketing. 2. Marketing through traditional media outlets, such as TV, radio, newspapers, magazines, door to door campaigns etc., is more expensive. And these types of media, simply have a smaller percentage of the market than the internet and other technological outlets. 4. Tracking is critical to the success of any online campaign. Without a way of tracking, the only way to know if a campaign has been successful, is if it is purely subjective. And subjectivity is prone to errors and mistakes.Q: Identify if the value is a valid range of an attribute using xsl I have an XML document that includes an attribute whose value is a number: How can I identify which value in the attribute corresponds to which "obj" class? I'm trying to do this in XSLT 3.0. A: The OP asked about the range between 100 and 103. For that, use this stylesheet: XSLT 3.0 82157476af
